Bibliogov, United States, 2012. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 246 x 189 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.This unfinished manuscript of a manual on training methods was prepared at the Army Signal School at Ft. Monmouth, N. J. by a group of army officers stationed there, and civilian experts from the Civilian Advisory Board of the War Department General Staff during the school year 1924-25. The group had to break up before the manual was completed, so it could not be formally approved and made an official document of the War Department. Though unfinished and unofficial, the manuscript presents an interesting effort to develop a course in personnel and teaching methods by the applicatory system. This training manual consists of a series of applicatory problems called unit assignments designed for use in unit schools for officers in the various branches of service. The object of this manual is to provide an applicatory method of handling instruction in Army training problems which will acquaint the officers taking such a course, with the policies of the War Department as expressed in regulations and which will enable an officer to better solve the many and varied problems in Army training with which he may be confronted.
