Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Harvard Studies in Classical Philology, Vol. 21: 1910 In this article, which is a continuation of studies undertaken during my preparation of a new translation of Vitruvius, I have endeavored, as heretofore, to understand him as we find him in the best manuscripts without having recourse to conjectural emendation, - a device which seems to me particularly out of place in the case of a document like the De Architectura, unique in its kind and therefore the more precious. I would not defend and trust that I never have defended monstrosities, whether of language or of syntax, but I confess that I am often readier to admit my own inability to understand the manuscript tradition than to distrust it. For on the whole it appears to be remarkably good, when we consider the unusual difficulties and peculiarities with which the mediaeval scribe had to contend. As for our author himself, his good faith is, I trust, no longer open to question, and I believe that he might truly have said with Condivi, the biographer of...
